FREE SAMPLE · DOOR 1

THE KILLER BOOKED A SLEEPER

This is door 1 of the calendar, free to print. The card tells the story that opens the case. Its clue is a practice clue instead of the real one, so the sample gives nothing of the case away.

Print the pages, read the clue on the card, and cross out every passenger in the practice register it rules out. The answer is printed upside down at the foot of the card.

HOW TO PLAY

On Christmas morning 1957 the night conductor of the Midwinter Sleeper was found dead in the guard's van. His notebook says that one passenger on the December runs travelled under a name that was not theirs.

The register lists every passenger of the 24 runs. Each night you open one door. Its clue rules out some of the passengers: cross them out in the register. After door 24 one passenger is left, the name the killer booked under.

Each door card prints how many passengers your register should have left before that door. If your count is off, go back a door before you go on.

THE CLUE GUIDE

Read each clue as a rule about the register's columns. A clue that says the killer did not board at Eastgate rules out every passenger whose Boarded column says Eastgate.

Some clues ask you to work something out from a column. The berth H-14 is in car H, berth 14; even berths are upper berths. A ticket's check total is its five digits added up: 52310 gives 5 + 2 + 3 + 1 + 0 = 11.

Only cross out passengers the clue rules out. A passenger the clue says nothing about stays in.

The full calendar has all 24 doors and a register of 1,000 or 4,000 passengers: riddleportal.com/murder-mystery-advent-calendar

GUARD'S REPORT, GLEN CORRAN, DECEMBER 25

06:40. Found Mr. Owen Pell, night conductor, dead in my van after the Christmas Eve run. His notebook was in his coat. The last line reads: "One of them is not who the ticket says." H. Moss, guard.

PRACTICE CLUE

This one is for practice and has nothing to do with the case. Harold Moss found a black umbrella in a sleeping car after the run. Tommy Birch remembers whose it was: the owner had an upper berth and ate in the first dinner sitting.
